Call Number: I
	Apollonius, of Tyana
Language: I
	ca. 1225]
-	Incantations
	Manuscripts, MedievalConnecticutNew Haven
	Medieval and Renaissance Manuscripts in Beinecke Library
	Illuminated manuscripts
	Marginalia Ilustrations
	Manuscripts, MedievalFrance13th centurylocal
Type of Resource: r
-	Script: Neatly written in Gothica Textualis, mostly very regular and small, sometimes minute, with various additions by similar and later hands.
	Capitals in red, blue, or green at paragraph beginnings, mostly plain, but some with slight extensions; a large capital in red and blue with green tracery at beginning. Diagrams and drawings in red ink, mostly accompanied by text in brown, often with the text forming a part of the design, on parts or all of ff. 10v-17v.
	Binding: Wrapper, probably modern, consisting of a piece of old parchment, perhaps cut from the blank portion of a large document with a fold and some slits, the modern sewing penetrating the back.
	Fifteen pages of largely diagrammatic drawings, approximately thirty-six in all, depending on now their relationships are interpreted (the text calls for thirty-two), are found from f. 10v to f.
	17v, most of them accompanied by labels and the texts of prayers consisting of long series of invented names with exotic sounds written in a minute hand in brown ink, while the designs themselves are throughout in red. The text of the manuscript also includes numerous prayers, some of them consisting of exotic names.
	Manuscript on parchment of Apollonius, Ars notoria, sive Flores aurei. A text in which a direct approach to knowledge is sought by means of incantation. The text of the manuscript also includes numerous prayers, some of them consisting of exotic names.
	f. 18 : parchment ; 259 x 165 (203 x 133) mm.
